

The University of Nebraska at Omaha School of Criminology and Criminal Justice (UNO SCCJ) invites applications for a _____ position to begin August 19, 2024. Candidates must hold a Ph.D. in Criminology, Criminal Justice, or a related field. Candidates must demonstrate a robust research agenda (e.g., publications in high impact criminology and criminal justice journals, securing external funding); engaging in applied criminal justice research with criminal justice agencies and organizations; dedication to high quality teaching and mentorship; and working effectively and supporting individuals from diverse backgrounds and cultures.

_____ is a _____ Ph.D. granting program spanning the Omaha and _____ campuses. This position is assigned to the Omaha campus. We offer degrees at the undergraduate, masters, and doctoral level with approximately 950 majors and 130 graduate students. SCCJ has excellent resources to support faculty research through robust _____, including the _____, strong ties to local and state criminal justice agencies, opportunities to work with the SCCJ's legislatively funded research centers (_____ and the _____), and a collegial and supportive _____. The typical teaching load for research active faculty is two classes per semester (2/2).

_____ is a premier metropolitan university designated as a Doctoral Granting Research University by the Carnegie Foundation. Located in the heart of _____ adjacent to city parks, thriving neighborhoods, and amazing schools, the campus has more than 15,000 students. New student housing, ongoing expansion and renovation of buildings, and strong _____ adds to a vibrant campus life.

_____ is a dynamic and energetic city with approximately 1 million people residing in the